1. INTRODUCTION

The Employee Engagement is more important and often talked about the importance of creating the team and making the employees feelings of belonging to the company. Getting involved in a team is more important in employee engagement process. In Short we could say the engaged employee can improve and adopt the culture of the company to make them feel comfortable in the environment, where the company gives the benefits of doing work from Home option. But the Employee has to available to the team to coordinate the further process of work to complete the company's daily deadlines.

Strategies for engaged employees are firstly, Leadership to lead the team who works in different place and connects only through the work time meetings & workforce environment to improve the productivity.

Second, Feedback between the employees where an company's team leader have to connect with all the employees personally through the help of technology like Google Meet, Zoom call, Skype and other video calls to know the intension and interest of an employee engaged towards the company values and culture.

Third, Set the common goals and Objectives where a team Leader has to identify the difficulties of an employee and sort out the issues to accomplish the company goals and attain the objectives in stipulated time period. Communication acts as an important role between the workers which helps them to pay more attention to their task and therefore the quality of the process and final output will be higher in terms of productive value.

Fourth, Implement the value motivation and Responsibility, There are numerous ways to reward the team for their achievements and makes them to feel appreciated among the team members which will improve their quality of work and recognize in terms of monetary benefits.

Fifth, Promote the good work Environment, During the Unexpected situations like Locked down, the work place environment should be friendly, comfortable, more productive of work in flexible work time that makes good understanding of team members to improve team cohesiveness..

2. DIFFICULTIES OF TRAINING PROGRAM IN HYBRID WORKPLACE

The Pandemic Period has made work from home in Common. The Company faces lots of measures to cut down the cost for paying the Electricity bill, Office Maintenance Expenses, Fuel for Cab Facilities, Canteen facility, Client visit expenses, Stock maintenance and so on. The Hybrid work model has been an excellent option to reducing the stress level of an employee with the help of proper work life balance.

Listing out the common challenges during the Hybrid Workplace are as follows:

1. Failed to meet the Team Members Regularly - The empathy of the team member can able to identify only if you meet them in person. Regular Meet up through video Conference will clarify the doubts of an employee in his process of workflow.
2. Ensure reliable Communication -In Business, Communication plays a major role to know the value of work, Sharing of ideas, routing the innovative thoughts of Team members and discussion of particular problem. Engaged Employee can make sure to convey his ideas and views of looking into a problem in another dimension. So proper training in Soft skills is important to each employee.
3. Adherence to Hierarchy- During video conference call, all team members can pretend to pay proper attention to the Team Lead and business head & Clients. As we adherence to be the hybrid work all employees to be engaged in assigned work. Sometimes attending the meeting in proper attire is an expectation from Client that company must abide the rule.
4. Listen Actively- Proactive listening yourself to know the patience levels to engaged an employee in an organization. Making others to feel comfortable to sharing their feedback with you.
